VOICES AND VISIONS. In youth, beside the lonery sea, Voices and visions came to me. Titania and her furtive broods Were my familiars in the woods. From every flower that broke in flame, Some half-articulate whisper came,

In every wind I felt the stir Of some celestial messenger. Later, amid the city's din And toil and wealth and want and sin, 124 They followed me from street to stree', The dreams that made my boyhood sweet. As in the silence-haunted glen, So, mid the crowded ways of men Strange lights my errant fancy led, Strange watchers watched my bed.

In this acrial company. 549 Now one by one the visions fly, 270 And one by one the voices die. More distantly the accents ring, More frequent the receding wing. 86 Full dark shall be the days in store.

Ill fortune had no shafts for me leciandic Simplicity. The laws of Iceland, according to writer in Pearson's Weekly, are so fully recognized that the services of a police officer are hardly necessary; criminals arrest themselves, and the authorities have little trouble in securing the punishment of an offender. A young Icelandic friend of mine, says the writer, going across the desert from Reykjavik, met a man riding a pony. Such meetings are rare in these parts, and, like ships on the sea, the two hailed and spoke. And this was the manner and substance of the conversation: "What is your name?" "Stefan." "Whose son?" "Thorstein's son." "Where are you going?" "To prison." "What for ?"

"Stealing a sheep." "No one taking you?" 7"No. the sheriff was busy, so he gave me my papers-the warrant for the arrest-and sent me on to prison by myself."

The men exchanged snuff and a kiss, and parted. A week later the young Icelander was returning to Reykjavik, and near the same spot he met the "What !" he cried. "Stefan Thor-to prison !" "So I was, and I went; but they would not let me in." "Why not ?"

"Because I had lost my papers, and the sheriff said he could not take me without my warrant." "So they won't have you in prison?"

"And you are going home again?" "Yes," An Irish girl, who was servant to a lady, was complimented by her before company on the elaborate ornamentaornamentation of a large pleat dinner.

Length of the Limb.

Is it true that the left leg in human beings is generally the longer? Ans-Yes, and so, too, that the right arm is longer than the left. Both legs of a large proportion of human beings are not of the same length; in fact the length of both arms and legs frequently varies in the same individual, and, according to Barker, in all persons. Of seventy skeletons measured, only seven, 10 per cent., had lowerlimbs of equal length; twentyfive or 35.8 per cent. had the right limb longer than the left; and in thirty-eight cases, or 54.5 per cent., the left limb was the longer. In the majority of cases the right arm and lett leg were the longer; out of fifty skeletons it was so in twenty-three of them whereas the left arm and right leg were so in six, the limbs on the right side longer than those on the the inequality of the limbs was more varied. If the limbs are unequal in length, the individual cannot be expected to walk in a straight line unless guided by the eye. This fact goes far to explain the phenomenon of persons lost in the snow, fog or forest traveling round in a circle while endeavoring in vain to find their way

He Knew Two Pair of Aces. The Washington Post tells the following good story on Governor Lowry, of Mississippi. The governor was spending an evening with some friends in that city, and after tea the gentlemen of the party adjourned to the library, where some cards and chips were produced, and they were soon deep in the mysteries of a game of poker, with which the governor professed to be none too familiar. Presently there was a jackpot on the table, which had gone around several times Hands were dealt and the pot opened, and, as the play passed to the governor, he hesitated a long time and seemed in doubt whether he should stay or not. Finally he showed a card to his neighbor and asked whethit were a king or a jack. "That's a king, governor," said the gentleman. "Then I take this to be a queen?" asked the governor, showing another. The gentleman assented, and the governor called for one card. The gentleman who opened the pot had three nines, and sized the governor up as stein! Why, you said you were going having two pair, kings and queens. The governor bet high and finally the other cautioned that two pair did not call for a great deal. "Oh, go ahead," said the governor, cheerfully, "never mind that," pushing up some more chips. Presently the hands were laid down, and it was seen that the governor did, indeed, have two pair, but

> The oldest lodge of Free Masons in America, St. John's Lodge, of Boston, recently held its 106th annual meeting at which new officers were installed by Wyzeman Marshall, who was master of the lodge in 1858, 1859 and 1880. The lodge possesses two large bunches of grapes, the original tavern sign adorning the front of the Bunch of Grapes Inn at Boston, where the first lodge of Free Masons in America was established in 1734.

Speaker J. K. Vardaman, of the Green wood Enterprise, in a recent in-terview concerning his candidacy for Governor, stated that he had been ap-proached on the subject, and had the matter under consideration.
